Mr. Henry Chapman:

My dear Friend,

Thanks for your letter of acknowledgment. Of course I referred to the aged Lincoln who was more than 70 when I was a young man. Today I sent you a small express package of various things that I purchased during my many years of extensive travels, but I may as well dispose of them at my time of life, and use the money to buy books for Gettysburg where I have sent many thousands of vols. for the College, & Theological Seminary. Among the articles are some genuine antiques that I once prized in connection with their history. There is a genuine portrait of Julius Caesar used on a more modern coin with his memorable words: "Veni, Vidi, Vici". I bought it many years ago in Rome, and never could find another. It is interesting. You will do your best on all of them. I have 2 small paintings of past centuries; the one of the Dutch school; and the other Italian. They are fine & interesting pictures, and I shall be pleased to send them to you for sale, if you can use them, and that will enable me to buy more books.

How sorry I am that I cannot attend the annual meeting in Buffalo; but my wife's condition will not permit it. I am greatly interested in the archaeology researches of ancient coins, and nothing makes the past so real.

With best wishes I am

Yours sincerely,

Jeremiah Zimmerman
